■ Project overview

Adovo is a non-profit organization to which 120 high school and university students nationwide belong. We carry out activities to support young foreigners (technical interns, etc.) working in Japan. Our greatest characteristic is that we are of the “same generation”. At Japanese language classes, community exchange events, and seminars before and after coming to Japan, we provide support from the perspective of people of the same generation.

■ How donations are used

The donations received through this crowdfunding will be used to promote multicultural coexistence in the region.

At the Japanese language classes and exchange events we hold, we are able to create an environment where people can feel free to discuss everything from the small to the big things because they are of the same generation. It also gives them peace of mind to have Japanese friends of the same generation in the area where they work.

These activities have so far been carried out in five regions across the country. By enriching our activities and expanding our area of activity, we hope to deliver this support to more trainees.

For this purpose, we need to pay for the preparation of the Japanese language education environment in each region and for holding exchange events. Additionally, in order to expand these activities nationwide, we will form chapters of the organization in various regions across the country.

In addition to local events, our organization also carries out various projects to support them.

By using the donations we receive, we can create a comfortable environment where young foreigners working in Japan can work with peace of mind. We believe that if the technical intern trainees fall in love with Japan through our support, this will lead to more foreigners coming to Japan in the future. doing.

Through this crowdfunding, we will be able to extend the support of our organization to many young working foreigners through high school and university students across the country!
